Council Approves Mission Tract Request To Annex

Last night the city council authorized circulation of an annexation petition in the eastern portion of the Mission Tract; accepted the donation of a painting for the city memorial art museum; approved sending Fire Chief Robert Baker to a meeting in Massachusetts; hired Robert G. Griggs as building inspector; authorized further payments on the new police station, corporation yard and public works facility; delayed appointment of a new fire marshal and paid captain for the fire department; established new time limit parking zones and adopted an ordinance controlling the discharge of waste water on city streets, also authorized a landscaping contract with Phillips Petroleum Company.

City Attorney William B. Burleigh was asked by the council to prepare a resolution authorizing the circulation of an annexation petition in an area of the Mission tract bounded by the east side of Rio Road, west side of Dolores Street, Santa Lucia Street and the back line of lots on the south side of Franciscan Way. Action will be taken at the next meeting of the council.

The council accepted as "a valued addition" the Carmel Art Association's offer to donate a Richard Lofton painting to the city hall memorial art museum but denied the association's request to Joan Snow of Carmel displays one of the signs depicting the theme, Fun with Fashions and Flowers Around the World, for the Monterey County Fair and National Horse Show, August 10-14. Marcia McGinnis of Carmel has worked with Joan on decorations for the 1966 county fair. In January, the two young artists began designing flowers, baskets, signs and other decorations. Next week, the mall and other areas of the fair grounds will be ablaze with color as the result of their creativity.

Two Carmelites who will compete for ribbons at the fair are Merle Murphy, right, and Mrs. George C. Popoff, left. A contractor, Mr. Murphy finds time to serve the community as a member of the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department. His homemade bread has won awards at past fairs. Mrs. Popoff consistently wins numerous prizes for the needlework of various kinds she exhibits annually.

Local entrants in the National Horse Show will be Donna Woods, Nelson Long, Cindy Kodani, Fale Hennerson, Joan Waring, Peggy Hudson, Mary Rice, Dennie Dudley, Betty Risser, Susan McArthur, Sherman Smith, Sally Hudson, Susie Lang, Linda Maderak, Leslie Fox and Corole Hogan.

Senator Fred Farr of Carmel and Assemblyman Alan G. Pattee of Corral de Tierra will act as ringmen for the Junior Livestock Auction on August 13.

Carmel artists will be represented in the fine arts division; gardeners in the floriculture and horticulture exhibits.

The work of other Carmelites will be seen in the photography and crafts shows.

Mayor Proposes Do-It-Ourselves Plan For Sunset

That the city council, most likely, will not approve the $4,000 requested by the Sunset Commission for a feasibility study to determine future use of Sunset Center was indicated last night during a one-hour budget session following the regular council meeting. Apparent, also, was doubt that the council will approve the arts commission request for funds to continue free Sunday afternoon programs and other functions at the Forest Theater.

Mayor Stephen Grant stated that he and Councilman William Sefton met on Monday with the Sunset Commission chairman, Peter Dyer, and Commissioners James B. Pruitt and Dr. James Gilman. As a result of this conference, the Mayor proposed that no outside consultant be hired for the feasibility study, but that local persons having the expertise aid the commission in the determination of future use of the municipal cultural and community center.

He favored a continued investigative course on a city-wide basis, emphasizing full consideration of the artistic and cultural nature of Carmel, in order to discover how best the city's land and money can be combined for future uses of Sunset Center.

The city would not "get its money's worth" by employing an outsider for a feasibility study, was his opinion.

Councilman Herbert Blanks objected to the world "should" in the four proposals, so far, for use of the center. He maintained this word implied a feasibility study would "tell us what we should do." He cited the employment of an outsider to frame the general plan of the city as an example of such procedure which had proved unsatisfactory and was mostly repudiated. Mr. Blanks proposed study by the Sunset Commission, then employment of a local consultant to aid the commission in framing

Board Hires Business Manager, Reduces School Tax Nine Cents

Last night the board of education hired Walter E. Hinton as business manager of the Carmel Unified School District. He was recommended for the job by the newly appointed superintendent, Dr. Harris A. Taylor, and was hired for the 1966-67 school year at an annual salary of $14,750.

When questioned as to Mr. Hinton's qualifications, Dr. Taylor stated that he had known him for a number of years and found that they worked well together. Mr. Hinton has been involved in the business operation of schools for the past 14 years as business manager for two unified districts and one elementary district. He also has served as president of a private construction firm.

The board held a public hearing on the 1966-67 budget. Board President Dr. Robert E. Newton stated that the $2,407,294 budget had many areas which were below the proper level for certain of the district's educational objectives. "We

IN WHITE OAKS MUSICAL

Shelia Jo White as Lady Larkin and John Herzog as Sir Harry are musical comedy lovers in "Once Upon A Mattress" which is being presented in final performances this Thursday through Sunday at White Oaks Theatre at 8:30 p.m. "Beyond the Fringe" is performed Tuesday night (except August 9) and "The Magic Fish-Bone" is done for children on Sunday afternoons at 2:30 o'clock.

Brightest Part Of Circle Theatre Farce Is Troupe Of Pretty Girls

BY DOROTHY REED

What you believe? Well, all things considered, no. Farce is one of the hardest dramatic forms to put over successfully—on a par with freezing a bubble. The actors must persuade the audience to suspend ordinary standards of credulity in accepting the first outrageous situation and then keep them laughing and believing as one absurdity follows another. "An Italian Straw Hat," now at the Circle Theatre, offers some funny moments but there is a lot of slogging in between. One can't help thinking that a friendly insurance agent could have rescued the distracted hero in nothing flat and avoided the whole two hours of nonsense.

The thread of plot picks up a young man, Nick Hovick, on the morning of his wedding, when his apartment is invaded by a soldier, Michel Joyet, and a lady, Joyce Malokoff. These two claim that they were engaged in innocent conversation in the park when the bridegroom's horse snatched and devoured the lady's expensive, exclusive straw hat which she had left on a tree. By a kind of logic familiar to TV situation-comedy fans, she cannot return home without the hat and she will not leave the apartment until provided with a duplicate; the young man dare not proceed with his wedding plans lest his father-in-law discover the strange woman in his rooms.

During the antics that follow, the wedding party mistakes a millinery parlor for the registry office and a deaf old guest (Tony Garifoli) for the judge. A baroness becomes the inadvertent hostess to the wedding dinner as she assumes the bridegroom to be the famous singer she has invited. He has come, of course, in search of a hat, but it turns out to be the identical hat that the horse munched, and in the meantime the secret has been leaked to the lady's husband, played rather dispassionately by C. Winter Van Horn.

It all untangles eventually, to the joy, one earnestly hopes, of the utterly woebegone little bride, Anne Brown, and her oafish father, Jim Goffard. Left in the cold is the bride's provincial cousin, John J. Russell.

The play contains a good deal of singing, which is pleasant, though none of the songs is tunefully memorable and the singers are handicapped by embarrassingly clumsy lyrics, undoubtedly the result of an inept translation from the original 19th century French. Another problem of this sort of production is that the early players were reinforced in their parts by their accents and diction, so that the country bumpkins were sorted out from the city slickers and both from the aristocrats. These distinctions don't come through with contemporary actors and that much comic impact is lost.

The brightest part of the show is the troupe of pretty girls who make up the wedding party and swish in and out and round about: Wendy Thaler, Kathy Jerram, Renee Wurzmann, Joan E. Swartz; and Bea Gracey plays just the sort of chambermaid that every man would enjoy having around the house.

"An Italian Straw Hat" plays Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings at 8:30.

IN SHAKESPEARE PLAY

Two Carmel girls, Susan Mason (left) and Molly Holman (right) have leads as Rosaline and Maria in the current Monterey Peninsula College production of Shakespeare's "Love's Labour's Lost." Here they are shown in a scene with John Hancock of Fort Ord, who plays Boyet. The play, which opened July 28, will run again tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday in the MPC Little Theatre on campus at 8:30 o'clock each evening. Tickets may be purchased at the theater door.

AFA To Be Host For Arts Council

The next meeting of the Arts Coordinating Council of Monterey County will be held on August 17 at 2 p. m. with the Monterey Peninsula Chapter of the American Federation of Arts as host in this organization's workshop in Sunset Center, according to Leonard Klene, ACCMC president.

On July 27, the council met at White Oaks Theatre in Carmel Valley in accordance with the plan to hold meetings with various member organizations as hosts. Preceding a tour of the theatre establishment, council members unanimously approved the idea of development of a graduate school of music at Sunset Center as proposed to the Sunset Commission by one of this body's members, Mrs. W. E. van Loben Sels. Plans were made for ACCMC to have a booth at the Monterey County fair, jointly staffed by member organizations, with literature and promotional material on council activities featured. Reports were given by Claudine Van Vleet and Fritz Wurzmann, council delegates to the American Symphony Orchestra League conference on arts management at Asilomar last month.

Member organizations of the Arts Coordinating Council of Monterey County represented at last week's meeting were the Monterey County Symphony Association, Carmel Bach Festival, Cultural Arts of the Monterey Peninsula, Monterey Peninsula College, Junior League of the Monterey Peninsula, Community Theatre, Carmel Music Society, Monterey Peninsula Choral Society and White Oaks Theatre, also associate members of the council, the Carmel Pine Cone and the Monterey Peninsula Herald.

Early Deer Season Opens On Saturday

Early deer season in Monterey County opens on Saturday and closes September 25. According to the California Department of Fish and Game, a small increase in the buck take is expected this year, mostly three-year-olds.

The largest area open to the public for deer hunting is Los Padres National Forest which may be approached through Carmel Valley and Highway One south of Carmel. Campfire permits are required throughout the forest, except for certain designated campsites. Hunting on military reservations will be permitted on weekends and federal holidays starting August 6 at Hunter Liggett and August 28 at Camp Roberts.

Hunters are reminded by the DFG that fire hazards exist in most early deer season areas, also that drinking water should be carried. Shooting hours are from one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset. The bag limit is two bucks, forked-horn or better. A hunting license ($4) and deer tags ($2) are mandatory and can be obtained at sporting goods stores.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

Our new Reference Room in the basement of the library is going great guns even though we do not have the furniture for it as yet. We need more tables and chairs but the most important things are there—the books, and Mrs. Chester, our still new reference librarian. We keep the door closed to shut out noise from all the tourists waiting to use our rest rooms. If it is not shut, they spill over into the reference room and amuse themselves by looking around and asking each other in loud voices "Isn't this nice? Did you ever see this book before?" and so on and so on. Get's pretty disturbing! The door bears the words QUIET PLEASE, and about this we are not fooling. This is the one quiet room in the library and we mean to keep it that way. So come on down, come on in, and keep as quiet as you can, because this room is where we study a little about a few things.

There are some very good books this week, so many in fact that it was a hard thing to choose a few to mention here. First, there is THE FINE ART OF HYPOCHONDRIA OR HOW ARE YOU? by Goodman Ace. Years ago when radio was fun and television wasn't even thought of, Goodman and Jane Ace had a delightfully funny program on radio. Goodman wrote it. Since that ran itself out, he has done a great many things and as of now he is writing books. This one is a must for anyone who can read. As a card carrying hypochondriac, he has recently founded Hypochrondriacs Anonymous. Let's all read the book and then send for membership cards.

Light and easy reading is THE BIG SPENDERS by the late Lucius Beebe. Most of this has been covered before by Cleveland Amory and others, but this account of the lives and spending habits of the very wealthy will be interesting to some people. The book is illustrated with photographs, and in some Mr. Beebe himself cuts a dashing figure.

BURN, BABY, BURN! is the title of the book about the Watts riots. It was written by Jerry Cohn and a co-worker on the Los Angeles Times. The information was gathered from reports, from testimony of rioters and police, and from observation. It sounds truthful and the mental picture painted is a bad one. But the thought keeps recurring that we lucky ones who live far from scenes such as these should read very carefully the accounts of the riots and heed the theories about what caused the disturbances. It could happen here.

A beautiful book is THE ART OF MARGOT FONTEYN by Keith Money. Fonteyn was photographed in 18 ballets, both in practice and in performance. This is the artist at her peak of performance. Wonderful and beautiful!

The new ESQUIRE'S BOOK OF BOATING seems to be most complete and authentic. Anchors, ropes and knots, instrument panels, sails and spars, the whole bit. It all looks so technical and there is so very much of it, the thought keeps coming that it might be better to just sit on a rock and watch the boats go by.

We have the two new books about flying saucers or UFOs. The one called FLYING SAUCERS SERIOUS BUSINESS by Frank Edwards, and THE INCIDENT AT EXETER by John Fuller. Read these two books and you will be out with binoculars every free moment, scanning the skies and hoping. There are waiting lists on them both.

PLAZA ELMS WIN UNUSUAL PRIVILEGE

Without stirring from city hall, the council gave permission on Tuesday afternoon for Leslie Fenton to have Daniels Tree Surgery trim two elms in front of Carmel Plaza. These trees have to be trimmed regularly. In the past, the work has been done so well that the council found it unnecessary to make a decision on the Plaza site. In fact, Mr. Fenton was freed from any future tree trimming requests in regard to the elms. There were no other items on the monthly tree tour agenda.

"Ciji" Ware To Marry

"Young woman on her way up" best describes "Ciji" (formally Corlis Jane McCullough) Ware, who is arriving from New York tomorrow to visit her grandfather, Will L. Ware of Carmel, and friends in California in the course of her work as a research-reporter and production assistant with National Education Television of New York City. With the director and camera crew, Ciji will set up interviews for documentaries to be produced by the network.

Ciji's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Ware of Carmel, who are currently in Chicago, have just announced their daughter's engagement to Stewart C. Billett of New York City. The couple's wedding will take place late this month in Gays Mills, Wisconsin, where the Wares spend summers on their farm.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Carmel High School and Radcliffe College. Her sister, Mrs. Vitaly Volmensky of Salinas, will be a bridal attendant, as will Molly Geraghty of Chicago, a Radcliffe classmate.

Stewart, the son of Mrs. Herman Billet and the late Mr. Billet of New York, attended New York University, also served with the U. S. Marine Corps in Korea. He is a producer in program development with Merv Griffin Productions in Manhattan.

Members and guests of the Cultural Arts of the Monterey Peninsula have been invited to a reception this evening at the home of Mrs. Rody B. Holt. Andy R. Fishing In Baja

When the weather is uncooperative for game fishermen in the waters south of La Paz, Baja California, the ideal way to cope is to travel by chartered plane to places where the wily creatures are biting. This is exactly what Wendell Redding and Commander E. J. Greer of Carmel did last month during a ten-day trip to Mexico. Finding too much wind at usually ideal Rancho Buena Vista, they and their two companions "hopped" to various gulf ports, including Mulege, to get their fill of their favorite sport.

Streets Trek To Sierra

Webster "Toby" and Claudia Street, with young Deborah and Jerry Street and Homer the Hound, are off tomorrow in Claudia's brand new, four-wheeled birthday present for a two-week vacation in the mountains. This year, they have taken a cottage at Incline Village, Nevada, north of Lake Tahoe, where directions for finding them include enquiring at "The Chataux," a name they couldn't resist.

Mrs. Street's daughter, folk singer Dewey Dutton, is expecting friends from Santa Monica to help her cope with assorted household pets during the vacationers' absence.

Michael Monti Overseas

Airman First Class Michael J. Monti, whose marriage to the former Julie Sheppard of Carmel took place at Carmel Mission on June 11, is now on duty with U. S. combat air forces in Southeast Asia. While he is overseas, his wife is remaining in Carmel to assist his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ercole Monti, in their Italian restaurant here.

Rained Out

The weather man fouled up Les Enfants Artistes Saturday for the first of their weekly exhibits in the garden of Gallatin's in Monterey. Rain sent them scuttling to phones to alert distinguished guests that the "quality showing of progressive art" was cancelled but, in spite of the damp, a lively party developed to christen the new endeavor sparked by a group of Monterey Peninsula College students, Gay Powers, Sue Williamson and Bill Warrick. This week, they were joined by Jerry Takagawa and, come what may from the skies, the exhibits will be held each Saturday from 1-4 p.m.

The aim of the "promoters," whose work will also be on view, is to encourage new and young artists by giving them an opportunity to exhibit.

Laurels For Kitty Bayless

Carmel City Clerk Hugh Bayless is happy to have his wife, Kitty, and their sons home after the trio's month-long vacation in Texas—and justifiably proud of Kitty for the honors accorded her while attending the Piney Woods Writer's Conference at Stephen F. Austin College in Nacogdoches. Mrs. Bayless was awarded fourth place for a collection of her poetry, "Bridge the High Wind." But even more exciting was the first prize for her as-yet-unpublished novel, "And Many a Wasted Sun," which she has not so far submitted for criticism by her fellow students in Maxine Shore's creative writing class.

Canadian Keen On Carmel

Fred Bodgen Jr., president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Winnipeg, Canada, found Carmel "completely fascinating" during his brief visit here last week with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Peterson of Oakland, who pressed their long time friend, Mrs. Lou Russell, into guiding them on a tour of local attractions. Mr. Bodgen was particularly entranced with the village's many "alleys" and courts as well as the hospitality fo the Carmelites he met.

The Petersons, on a recent visit to Winnipeg, were named "tourists of the year" and so won the hearts of the citizens that they were selected for a further honor—that of presenting to Mr. Bogden a key to the city of Oakland in ceremonies held at the Oakland City Hall.

Pictured in the dining room of Highlands Inn, above, as they reminisced about Carmel's history, are Mrs. Jane Vial, social editor of the Pine Cone, Mayor Stephen Grant of Carmel and Mrs. Marjorie MacEwan Haller, publicity chairman of the Carmel chapter, American Red Cross. The trio was part of a panel interviewed by KRML's Margo Hilliard during her "Luncheon With Margo" program at the inn which marks its 50th anniversary this year. Mrs. Hilliard's other guests were former State Senator Ed Tickle, who bought the hotel from F. J. Devendorf in 1924, and Mrs. Robert J. Ramsey, wife of the present owner of the popular resort.

Mayor Grant spoke of the city's plans to celebrate Carmel's 50th birthday, Mrs. Haller of her experiences in 50 years with the Red Cross, and Mrs. Vial represented the Pine Cone, which celebrated it's 50th anniversary February 4, 1965.

'Do It Again!'

Clint Downing of Monterey Peninsula Country Club made an eagle on the club's Shore par five, greatly trapped ninth hole in June while playing with his wife and Professor and Mrs. B. J. Valtr in the mixed foursomes tournament. The next time he played the Shore course, in July, his companions were Bob Allen, Dick Whitmore and Chal McWilliams.

On the same hole, Mr. Downing's drive put him in the rough, the next shot to within about 125 yards of the green. As he approached the ball, he related his previous experience to Mr. McWilliams, who said, "Well, do it again!" Would you believe it? The ball ended up in the cup for another eagle three, leaving Mr. McWilliams gasping, "What do you suppose the odds are on a thing like that?"

The backing and filling was pure Chaplin, reports Sis.

Visitors From Mazatlan

Sra. Jesucita de Laveaga and her daughter, Rosita, have arrived to spend several months here as the guests of Sra. de Laveaga's brother-in-law and sister. Mr. and Mrs. Mike Morales of Carmel Point. The visitors, whose home is in Mazatlan, Mexico, are shivering a bit in the fog but nevertheless enjoying the area's attractions.

When her mother returns to Mazatlan, Rosita plans to remain with her aunt to attend school here.

Anyone Know Bert Heron?

Herbert Heron stepped out of his car recently and was approached by a white-haired gentleman who asked, "Are you a stranger here?" When Bert assured the visitor he was not, the man said, "Can you tell me where I could find a man named Bert Heron?"

"That's me," replied Bert, lapsing into the local patois, as he puts it.

Mutual recognition dawned after a short exchange. The tourist was Russ Stimmel, now of Palm Springs, who built sets for many a Forest Theater play, including "Tusitala" and "Yolanda of Cyprus," recently subjects of much attention in the "50 Years Ago in Carmel" column in the Pine Cone.

Sailing Holiday

Last week, Herb Vial had his Islander sloop, "High Seas," hoisted onto its trailer for the perilous voyage down the freeways to Playa del Rey marina in Santa Monica Bay. Herb, a former Mercury skipper with the Stillwater Yacht Club and now a not-very-serious contender with the Monterey Peninsula Yacht Club, plans to spend three weeks sailing in Southern California waters, visiting various marinas and Santa Catalina Island coves. Several local friends, among them Dave Davis, will join him for short periods while he's cruising.

Shorts Plan Return

John and Peggy Short, at long last, are planning to return from England, probably around Christmas, when John will have completed his work on a B.Litt. degree at Oxford University. Manda, their elder daughter, will return with them, while her sister, Lenci, will continue at Summerhill School. Their son, Jody, will arrive on the Peninsula late this month prior to entering Robert Louis Stevenson School.

The Shorts, who are currently warming up during a holiday on the Mediterranean coast, were recently visited at Oxford by the John Boit Morses and the Ralph Atkinsons.

WIN STATE FAIR PAINTING AWARDS

For the third consecutive year, students of John Cunningham at the Carmel Art Institute have won the majority of awards in oil painting in the college, university and private art school section of the California State Fair art show.

Notified of their awards last week were Irene Robinson of Pacific Grove, first award, $100, and purchase by the State of California for its permanent collection of her life-size oil of a warrior; S. Y. Lim of Pacific Grove, third award for his painting entitled "Monterey Wharf" (Last year he won first prize; Tatiana Koslova, Carmel, honorable mention for a Point Lobos scene.

In the past three years, students of the Carmel Art Institute have won eight of the 12 awards in oil painting.

The State Fair show will be open to the public August 31-September 11.

An exhibition of recent oils and watercolors by Emile Lahner of Paris, France, will be on display at The Laky Galleries. August 6 through August 21. This exhibition presents paintings executed in the course of several trips to Britanny, the south of France and the French Pyrenees.

Now in his 70s, Emile Lahner is one of the oldest fully active artists on Montmartre, where for fifty years he and his closest friends, among them Picasso and Braque, painted and introduced to the world new and revolutionary developments.

The Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History currently is presenting a unique opportunity to study the variations within a single family of plants known commonly as succulents. "The Stonecrop Family: Variation on a Pattern" is a photographic exhibition organized by Dr. Reid Moran, curator of botany at the San Diego Natural History Museum. Dr. Moran is the leading authority in the stonecrop family, crassulaceae. The photographic exhibition is currently touring the United States and Canada under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution.

The 58 photographs and one diagram are supplemented with living specimens native to Monterey County plus a small collection of non-native garden favorites commonly grown in the area. The exhibition is scheduled to remain until September 4.

The 842 Gallery on Cannery Row, Monterey, will present experimental color films, abstract and representational, with music, on August 13 and 20 at 9:30 p.m. The programs, each different, run about two hours. Admission is free, although contributions will be gratefully accepted.

The Laky School of Art announces a one-week outdoor painting session under the direction of George De Groat. The course will begin on August 15 at 2:00 p.m., at the school studio, San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth streets. At this time a preparatory demonstration and discussion of design and composition, as applied to outdoor painting, will be given. Painting at an outdoor location will be an essential part of the course and instruction will stress drawing, spatial relationships, the importance of light and dark values, and structure, among other elements essential to the architecture of good painting.

Those interested may register at The Laky Galleries any time between the hours of 11 a.m. and 5 p.m., except Sunday, when the galleries are open from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Registration closes August 14.

Entries in the 26th North American International Photographic Exhibit and competition at the California State Fair are due August 10 at the Sacramento Fairgrounds.

As announced by Mrs. Dorothee Mull of Sacramento, State Fair board member in charge of arts, works including slides and color or black and white prints will vie for merit exhibition and $345 in prize money.

Sponsored by the Sierra Camera Club of Sacramento and the California State Fair and Exposition, the show is open internationally to professionals and amateurs.

HIGH TWELVE CLUB ACTIVITIES

Ray Booty of Carmel, chemical engineer and owner-operator of Booty Research Company of Salinas, will tell High Twelve Club members of the chemical research and equipment involved in discoveries affecting the lives of everyone at the club's Monday luncheon.

On August 14, the organization's annual picnic for families will be held at the water filter plant, 2.2 miles past Carmel Valley Village. Barbecue pits will be glowing for those wishing to cook and there will be music for the annual get-together. The club will provide coffee, soft drinks, ice cream and watermelons for the 150 expected to attend.

Mary De Neale Morgan To Play In Free Forest Theater Concert

A program by students of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music will be offered free to the public by the Carmel Arts Commission on Sunday at 2:00 p.m. in the Forest Theater.

Participating in the recital will be Mary De Neale Morgan, niece of Jeannie Morgan Klenke of Carmel; Karen Dahlstrom of San Bruno; Tomoko Hagiwara and Kirby Wilkerson of San Francisco; and Steven Bennett of Los Angeles.

Miss Morgan, who plays the flute, the piccolo and the piano, has been heard in several chamber music recitals in Carmel where she received her early education. Miss Dahlstrom is a scholarship student at the conservatory and is studying violin with David Schneider. Miss Hagiwara received her M. A. degree in Japan and her B. A. degree at the conservatory. She has studied piano with Adolph Baller in San Francisco and has performed with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra in a special performance under Joseph Krips in 1964.

Mr. Wilkerson plays the guitar. He is studying, also doing private teaching of the instrument, in San Francisco. Mr. Bennett, a student of both clarinet and of commercial art, plans to continue his music education in the East this Fall.

The two-hour program will include music of Vivaldi and Bach to Villa Lobos and rhythms from minuet to flamenco.

This summer's Sunday afternoon programs in the Forest Theater are planned as a part of the fiftieth anniversary celebration of the incorporation of Carmel.

New Production At White Oaks August 11

Staging of "Stop the World, I Want to Get Off" is underway at White Oaks Theatre in Carmel Valley in preparation for the opening on August 11. Gale Peterson, who is artistic director for the theatre, is rehearsing the musical company headed by John O'Connell and Mary Pattie.

This is O'Connell's second summer with the group. He is presently a student at San Francisco State College where he has recently done "Krapp's Last Tape," "Juno and the Paycock," and "Beyond the Fringe." (The White Oaks company is presenting the latter on Tuesday evenings.)

The role of Evie, a part requiring four different characterizations, will be Miss Pattie's last performance on the White Oaks stage. Having taken lead roles with both summer and winter companies for three years, the actress will be leaving this Fall for the Los Angeles area with her husband, White Oaks general manager Ron Mitchell.

"Stop the World" will run Thursday through Sunday nights at 8:30 p.m. until September 4. Final performances of "Once Upon A Mattress" are being given this weekend. The two one-act farce operas by Bizet and Offenbach, scheduled to run throughout the summer, have been cancelled due to meager attendance.

Letters To The Editor . . .

TAXING BURDEN

William Sefton,
Councilman

I would if I might, ask your deliberate consideration of a letter of mine, published in the Pine Cone on June the 16th, calling attention to the piling up of a burden on Carmel's taxing structure, inherent in ultimately oversized projects: a $600,000 (cultural) center at Sunset School, plus an unlimited cost (civic) center at 4th and Junipero.

As one having exercised field direction of the WPA in Cook County, Illinois, in which, in addition to Chicago itself, I was concerned for the fiscal aspects of some 60 large and small municipalities, I have seen the folly of too great a ratio of unproductive capital assets to the tax base, I have expressed concern for a seeming trend in Carmel's public spending attitudes.

I have strongly suspected that an easy-come, easy-go attitude in our City Council, betokened an inexperience that could lead to unpleasant consequences in times of stress, and how it might unduly curtail an overdue expansion of municipal service functions that are building up in our fast growing trend to metropolitanism.

I closed my letter with an appeal that the people of Carmel should be led to greater participation in deciding the policies involved in so ambitious a double undertaking.

That these are ambitious undertakings would surely be attested by the apparent necessity of borrowing, from a favored Bank, around $200,000 to apply to only one of them.

In the meantime, the Pine Cone has given us an excellent review of the mechanics of paying for these ambitious projects, but nothing as to the wisdom of such an enterprise.

It seemed to me that the wisdom of entering our fair Village on such unlimited and uncertain projects, two at a time, instead of one at a time, should be left to all of the people, rather than to an apparently over-ambitious Council.

So, I now wonder if you have seriously entertained in your thinking, methods of getting wide citizenship participation, and eventual wise decision on these matters of grave fiscal import. I could very well hope so.

C. A. De Camp

William Sefton,
Councilman

Noting that my letter to the Pine Cone, published in its June 16th issue, elicited a great deal of citizen interest, all favorable to a wider explication of municipal economics, I scanned the Pine Cone of July 21st for further treatment of the subject, to find that the Bach Festival had taken complete preference in matters of local interest. I therefore thought to query you as to developments as they had come to your experience and wrote you my letter of the 21st.

May I say that my reaction to your reply was to the effect that the public should have the benefit of your well considered approach to our civic problems, such that I would ask your kind permission to submit the correspondence to the Pine Cone for such disposition as they may care to make of it.

If agreeable, will you kindly OK a copy of this letter for my submission to the Pine Cone?

Sincerely
C. A. De Camp
OK/Signed William Sefton

COUNCILMAN SEFTON REPLIES

Dear Colonel De Camp:

In answer to your recent letter asking why I did not answer your letter to the Pine Cone, which appeared in the June 16th edition, I felt you understood my thinking and the responsibility I accepted when you and my many other constituents asked me to be your representative in Council. Should there be any question, here is my position:

We have a very serious problem in Carmel as to our fiscal responsibility. This is the reason I offered my services as Councilman. As one who recognizes the nature of our tax base which can only be accepted by a citizenry of modest and measured income, I feel that we, as a Council, must conduct the business affairs of our City in keeping with the taxing capacity of our community.

While we have the benefit of a commercial activity that pays for about 2/3 of our city government, we cannot allow ourselves on the Council level to make commitments of expenditures beyond the sensible level of what is best for our small community of 4,200 people.

We have a constant increase in cost for services to our City. If we use all the income from visitor business, which is our only industrial income, to provide additional Civic Center projects, the additional cost of city government can only be absorbed by increased taxes, which I know works a hardship on the many citizens of measured income who live in Carmel.

I feel as your Councilman, we must operate within our means. A city that experiences, according to a published statement from County Assessor Donald Stewart, a reduction of tax base assessment which exists at this time, must be very frugal and cannot afford the luxury of two so-called civic centers. This situation is most alarming because most every other city in our state is experiencing increased tax base, due to the population growth of California. The citizens, by vote, purchased Sunset Center. We have yet to put this property on a rewarding economic basis.

Now that a majority of our Council has embarked on another project that preempts all possible sources of income from our direct visitor business for the next 4-5 years, we have no other way to provide increased operating costs of our city government but to put it on the tax bill of our citizens.

I do not concur in this type of governmental spending, in spite of the fact that at present, a majority of our City Council lean in this direction. Consistently, in Council, I have voted against it. As one of a two-member Council Auditing Committee, charged with the scrutiny and approval of all payments out of the City Treasury, I will approve payments if they are fiscally in order and in keeping with the majority decision of the council. This does not indicate my approval of the Council decision, but is done only because a majority of the Council has approved the decision and I do so because the responsibility is theirs. However, I feel they are equally concerned with our fiscal problems.

It was not my intention to bore you with this situation, but I feel it my personal responsibility to explain to you—and I will appreciate you getting the message to the many other citizens, like yourself, who asked me to represent you in the operation of your city government.

I will constantly watch and, with dedication, do all I can as one of a Council of five, to protect your interests and represent you to the best of my ability. You and every other citizen in Carmel can help by getting your message to the other four Councilmen.

Yours truly,
William Sefton

SPLENDID REVIEW

Mr. Duke Everts:

Ever so often, and at times oftener, I see an article I wish I had written, or I wish I could have written.

So it is with your well deserved review of the "Mattress" show at White Oaks Theatre published in the Pine Cone. I, too, liked it. I, too, almost fell off the Xmas tree at the antics—and ploys—and plays—of all the performers. Linda Bobblitt is excellent as you said. Tracy Carr is not only a good actress with a nice voice,but also easy on the eyes. Shelia White—the same, neat, and the boys and other girls, too, fit in nicely, well and fine.

Thanks for your kind words. They, the players, deserve all the patronage your excellent review will bring them.

Appreciatively,
Walter J. Roth

"Who hath directed the Spirit of the Lord, or being his counsellor hath taught him?" Isaiah's tribute to the almightiness of God is part of the Bible Lesson-Sermon on "Spirit" to be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday.

Also included will be this passage from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Spirit blesses man, but man cannot 'tell whence it cometh.' By it the sick are healed, the sorrowing are comforted, and the sinning are reformed. These are the effects of one universal God, the invisible good dwelling in eternal Science."

CARMEL VALLEY

Casa Lobos Club of Hacienda Carmel at the annual election, chose Richard Bamhoff as president; C. P. (Ted) Hill, vice president; Bernard Dresser, secretary; Charles Robinson, treasurer; Louis Breuner, director.

Out-going president, Colonel Paul Boylan, announced the results at the July 18 election, according to Hal Wright, publicity chairman.

The "ladder" form of challenge competition brings players out on the shuffleboard courts all hours of the day and even after dinner. The contestants were organized one afternoon in the lounge by Frank Tittemore, outdoor recreation chairman, and now the record board in the space next to the bulletin board shows us all the growing skill of numerous residents. The prizes on display are fabulous!

CARMEL VALLEY MANOR

SPEAKING OF CONSERVATION—Mrs. Vivian Brackenfeld writes in "Echoes," monthly bulletin of Carmel Valley Manor, as follows: "The hot issue in the conservation world is the creation of a Redwood National Park before all the trees are reduced to stumps on a barren hillside. There are two choices before us and before Congress: the administration proposal of a 43,000-acre park on Mill Creek in Del Norte County; the conservationists' proposal of 90,000 acres in the Redwood Creek region of Humboldt County.

"The smaller acreage, advocated by the President and Secretary of the Interior Udall, includes two state parks that are already protected. It, therefore, rouses less antagonism in the powerful lumber interests. For a comparison of the two areas, see the reprint of the Congressional Record on our bulletin board.

"There will be more battles to wage in defense of the vanishing American wilderness. It will matter to our grandchildren."

PINPOINT PROFILES

Our story today concerns life in Alaska as it was lived 50 years ago, and the dedicated work of a young Southern teacher and church worker who accepted a charge there.

Miss Alice Green, born in New Orleans, had finished special kindergarten work, a semester at the University of Tennessee and one year at the famous Hull House in Chicago.

In the mail one day came a letter from her Episcopalian bishop asking her to take a post in the mission school at Anvik, Alaska. Would she accept? When the letter arrived it seemed as if she had been training all along for this special assignment. She could not find it in her heart to refuse. So it was that Alice Green Boulter, young, fresh and enthusiastic, arrived in the Yukon to spend the next 11 years of her life.

At first she lived for some time with a Reverend Chapman and his family and taught at the mission school, later moving to another school, under the direction of Miss Annie Cragg Farthing, in Nenana. Miss Farthing was house mother at this school—a most remarkable woman. In a book published in 1932, the Right Reverend Hudson Stuck describes her as follows: "It is no exaggeration to say that Miss Farthing's work has left a mark broad and deep upon the Indian race of this whole region that will never be wiped out."

The love she showed these Indian children, many of them waifs, was beyond description, Alice Boulter tells us. It was in this most congenial environment Alice lived for the year preceding her marriage to George Edward Boulter. It was he who was in charge of all the native schools up and down the Yukon.

Alice tells of his proposals—four in all. She would put him off saying "Next year. Just give me one more year to teach, then I will marry you."

Above in the front row are the Indian children in the Yukon who attended the mission school taught by Mrs. George Edward Boulter. Behind them stand their parents.

Finally the happy day arrived. The natives decorated the little church with cherokee roses, vines and bright bluebells. There was no wedding march because the groom was the only one who could play the organ. Alice and George pledged their vows before an admiring group of children and the whole village was crowded into the little chapel to witness the ceremony performed by Reverend Chapman.

The following year, the Boulters with a young Indian guide, inexperienced as they found out later, and two toboggans set out on a trip over the trail to the Indian village of Eagle.

Candles and axes are two of the most important items included in camping gear in that country. One particular evening a severe snow storm had started when the threesome decided to make camp. Jim, the Indian guide, sheepishly confessed he had lost the head of the axe in the snow. With darkness approaching and snow falling, their position was very serious. But no one panicked.

Mr. Boulter, Jim and Alice began digging into the snow surrounding their equipment. For almost an hour their search continued until the precious axe was found. In the confushion, to make matters worse, the candles had been lost, too. But the young guide knew how to improvise candles out of bacon fat and pieces of sugar sack.

A trip to England with their young son, George Jr., the next year proved very pleasant.

Alice's great-great-grandfather, the Reverend Womack, was Lord Bishop of London—a fact she records with pride.

Three little girls were born to the Boulters as the years progressed. The last daughter was not yet born when Mr. Boulter died quite suddenly. Alice was grief stricken and in shock for quite some time after this tragedy. However, her mother, back in the United States, persuaded her to come to Berkeley where they lived together while Alice worked for her California teaching credential at San Francisco State College.

For many years Alice taught in the Oakland schools, Bella Vista school in particular, where she instructed a class of mentally retarded children. She found it wonderful to see these little ones progress under her supervision and guidance.

Alice Boulter today lives in Canterbury Woods. She is still active and extremely interested in people. A friend is writing Alice's memoirs of the North Country.

One of her stories is about a fine looking Indian lad who lost an eye in an accident. He was very self-conscious and depressed because of this. Mr. Boulter noticed the boy's plight and decided to help him. He checked a popular mail order catalog and sent for several glass eyes. After they arrived, he brought in the young Indian boy and fitted him to the correct color, etc.

The Indian boy was delighted. He was the talk of the town! So was Mr. Boulter! From that time on the natives considered Mr. Boulter some sort of God with miraculous powers.

Oak Moth Larvae Defoliating Trees

Oak moths are giving homeowners a headache in central California and the San Francisco Bay area. Park superintendents and other officials in charge of protecting oak trees also have their problems.

Actually there are several species of defoliating caterpillars chewing away on California oak leaves, but the larvae of the oak moth is by far the chief offender. The various worms are closely related, and proper control against the oak moth caterpillar will knock out the other oak insect enemies.

Oak worms are voracious feeders on foliage of all species of oak throughout central California; they almost never attack any other genera of plants. Where infestations are heavy, there isn't any trouble spotting the damage done by these pests — they will be stripping the leaves off your trees!

Although an oak tree may be completely defoliated, this will not kill the tree, except possibly where repeated attacks or other limiting factors such as drought are present. However, the elimination of the leaves curtails growth and destroys the oak's value as an ornamental plant or shade tree.

When oak moth larvae first hatch, they are whitish with black spots, a few hairs, and relatively large, shiny dark heads. The larva at maturity (the heavy feeding stage) is an inch-long black worm, with yellow and red stripes. It has a large brown head. The adult moth has a wing span of an inch or better and is pale brown. Feeding by the worms on oaks probably will last until early fall. August is an ideal time to spray insecticides for these pests. Commonly used is DDT, and lead arsenate to control defoliating caterpillars on oaks. According to the University of California supplementary recommendation, the material, carbaryl, also known as Sevin insecticide, "should be especially useful where treatment is necessary on oaks adjacent to food or forage crops and where drift to these crops is likely to occur from the spray."

It is safest to have a professional pest control operator do the job.

50 Years Ago in Carmel

—THIS WEEK—

DO IT NOW

Something must be done, and quickly, to limit the terrific speed of automobiles traveling through the residence section of Carmel on San Carlos Street.

It has been suggested that "Slow Down" and "Blow Your Horn" signs be erected one block each side of Sunset School grounds and that drivers who fail to comply with these regulations be reported to the local constable at Monterey.

It has also been suggested that a mounted traffic officer be stationed near the school at the expense of the county.

INCORPORATION PETITION

Today (August 2, 1916) a petition, signed by 54 residents, will be sent to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors requesting incorporation of this area as a city.

STEVENSON'S STEPSON AT 'TUSITALA' PERFORMANCE

The performance of "Tusitala" by John Northern Hilliard and Herbert Heron at the Forest Theater under the auspices of the Western Drama Society was an artistic triumph.

And from the front of the house, as if to add to the realism of the masque of Robert Louis Stevenson's tales, was Stevenson's stepson, Lloyd Osbourne, a direct and intimate voice of the past. Osbourne and his wife sat there drinking in the beauty of it all, and said afterwards they would not have missed it for anything.

Lead parts in the masque were played by Mr. Hilliard and Mr. Heron; D. L. James, president of the Kansas City Symphony Association; John Gribner, Walter Butler O'Connell, Professor Francis E. Lloyd, Talbert Josselyn, Alice MacDougal, Marion Boke, Antonio Corsi, Professor S. S. Seward, Dr. Livesey, William Cooper and scores of others too numerous to mention in minor roles. Marion Devendorf, Rutherford Scott and Filio Afiamalu danced to original music by Frederick Preston Search.

Where else could one see so remarkable a cast?

VICTROLA FUND NEEDS $30

About $30 is still needed to purchase the victrola for Sunset School. It was hoped the machine would have been purchased for the opening of school on August 7.

Chester Coulter

Memorial services for Chester Coulter, director of the Carmel Citizens' Committee, were held Saturday in the Mission Mortuary with the Reverend Robert J. O'Brien of the Peninsula Unitarian Church officiating. Mr. Coulter, who was found dead at his Carmel home on July 28, succumbed to a heart attack, according to the county coroner's office.

A resident of Carmel for the past seven years, he was born in Frankfort, Indiana, June 17, 1898.

Mr. Coulter, a retired engineer and a veteran of World War I service, was an active member of the World Affairs Council of the Monterey Peninsula, of which he was currently treasurer.

He leaves his wife, Edith, of Carmel, also a son, Fred K. Coulter of San Francisco.

Friends wishing to make contributions in Memory of Mr. Coulter may do so to the American Friends Service Committee, 2160 Lake Street, San Francisco.

Avoid Wild Animals Which Appear Tame

A rabid fox was killed recently near the boy scout camp, Pico Blanco Reservation, in the coastal area of Monterey County. One of several animals found tame acting and sick, this fox had attempted to bite one of the boys.

Representing the first positive case of rabies reported in 1966 in Monterey County, this incident points out the fact that rabies in wildlife may occur just about any time and in any area of the county, according to Dr. Richard S. Fraser, county health officer.

Persons are warned to avoid all wild animals which are easily approached, Dr. Fraser emphasizes. The county health department asks parents to teach their children not to feed semi-tame wild animals. They are frequently bitten and the parents and doctor are faced with the difficult decision regarding rabies treatments for the victim.

place a plaque, listing distinguished local artists, proposed to be attached to a directional sign in an Ocean Avenue median island as all such signs, by order of the council, are to be removed.

The council unanimously authorized expenditure of $490 to send the fire chief to the Conference of the International Association of Fire Chiefs in Boston, combined with a visit to Elmira, New York, to see that the city's new fire engine and equipment meets specifications before it is delivered to the West Coast. Referred to study by an ad hoc committee was the proposal to combine the office of fire marshal with the duties of a paid engineer of the fire department, also the reclassification of another paid engineer to the rank of fire captain.

By a 3-2 vote, a progress payment of $33,749.40 to Granite Construction Company for work completed on Phase I of the civic center was authorized, also another progress payment of $674.39 to Burde, Shaw Associates for architectural supervision of the same project.

Letters To The Editor . . .

Editor, Carmel Pine Cone

If you feel any special fondness for Carmel, if you believe its traditions are important, if you believe its particular character must be maintained, then you should come to the budget session which the city council plans to hold August 10, at 8 p.m. in city hall.

At this meeting, the budgetary requests of the arts commission and the Sunset Commission are scheduled to be considered. Preliminary discussion at the council's July 26 meeting, seemed to suggest that a $4,000 expenditure for a "feasibility study" for Sunset Center, might find more favor with the council than an arts commission proposal to spend $3,425 to put on somewhat expanded summer Sunday afternoon programs, free to the public, in the city-owned Forest Theater.

Meanwhile, a deep cut was made in a sum proposed to present a John Steinbeck musical, to be directed by Cole Weston, as part of the 50th anniversary celebration.

Included in the $3,425 Forest Theatre item, is a sum of $900 for a theatre manager, and in the Sunset Commission budget is a proposal to spend $5,000 for a stage manager at Sunset Center. Intent of the items would be to centralize responsibility and control in city hands for tasks now performed at the various direction of the Bach Festival, the Carmel Music Society, the Monterey County Symphony, the city's arts and Sunset commissions.

Behind the specific budget items, and somewhat obscured by them, are far more important matters.

There certainly is no need to rush headlong into any particular expenditure at Sunset. The city can take its time. It need only spend, in any particular year, what it can readily afford. For many years, and until just a year ago, Sunset housed, and safely housed, hundreds of school children.

But now let's get back again to that matter of use of Sunset. Since there is no desperate rush to do any particular thing, common sense can readily dictate day-to-day and year-to-year use, while gradually reasonable long-term uses are gestated, proposed, and eventually developed.

And this brings us once more to the budget session of the city council to be held on August 10 for proposed Forest Theater expenditures will be on that night's agenda. The Forest Theater was given to the City of Carmel in 1937 by the Carmel Club of Arts and Crafts. The grant deed stated the property was conveyed to the city "for the sole purposes of a public park and play ground", and an attached resolution amplified this by adding, "it being understood that this use would include and continue out-door-theatre performances at said park . . ."

For much of the time since the Forest Theater was given to the city, the city council has given it slight attention.

While the city council has been profligate in other kinds of spending, it has devoted little attention to root matters dealing with Carmel's special cultural heritage.

In any event, if you have read this far, I hope that you will see that much could be at stake, for the future of Carmel, at the August 10 meeting. I hope that you'll come.

Gunnar Norberg

Stock Market Notes

By Hugh Hannon

Why is the stock market going down so far?

One leading group of analysts have this answer: "A change of pace of the economic expansion is now unmistakable. Most people welcome it as a relief from inflationary pressure. The figures begin to suggest, however, a change in direction, not just a change in pace." Two probable causes: the money pinch caused by tight money; reduced inventory buying caused by the recent slowdown in sales that caught many executives by surprise.

Is the stock market anticipating a recession?

One leading economist, who correctly predicted the remarkable expansion of the U. S. economy when the tax cut went into effect in 1964, now says. "The United States is very likely headed into a recession by mid-1977." He thinks it won't be deep but that it will be sticky for recovery.

Many of the mutual funds are getting more defensive. The recently formed Manhattan fund just reported that during the second quarter they sold: Admiral, Grumman Aircraft, Honeywell, KLM Royal Dutch Airlines, Metromedia, Sinclair, Syntex. During the same period they bought: American Tel. & Tel., Cities Service, Corning Glass, Delta Airlines, General Tel. & Tel., Government Employees Insurance, Johnson & Johnson, T.W.A. Airlines, U. S. Fidelity & Guarantee, and Virginia Electric & Power. The management said "To some degree the frothy edge is off the business boom."

Chin up folks! When everybody is pessimistic and the fast buck boys are selling, that's the time for conservative long term investors to start looking for buys. And speaking of buys, let's not forget the airline stocks.

One leading New York research department says "Rather than focus on the growth interruption (caused by the strike), we believe that this is the time to reexamine the potential in light of current prices. We conclude that the long term growth potential far outweighs short term labor problems. So buy National, American, TWA, & Eastern."

FIRE DESTROYS ANTIQUES

Early yesterday morning, fire of an undetermined origin caused an estimated $12,000 damage at a Ninth and Torres Street residence owned by Robert Edgren of Oakland. $5,000 of this covered antiques belonging to the tenant, Kenneth Boyd, who was absent.

The Carmel Volunteer Fire Department, called at 7:20 a.m., contained the fire to a large bedroom in the two story house and saved downstairs furnishings through fast salvage work. Most of the damage resulted from smoke and heat.

Do-It-Ourselves Feasibility Study

any future plan for Sunset Center. This procedure had worked well in the final framing of the city's general plan by the planning commission, he pointed out.

The Mayor proposed that copies of feasibility studies of cultural centers for other cities be obtained for study by the Sunset Commission, also that an additional $2,000 be put in the contingency fund in the 1966-67 budget. This sum could be used to employ a person to put the Sunset Commission's plan, if developed, into proper framework, instead of paying $4,000 for a feasibility study, he suggested.

Councilman Gunnar Norberg made a lengthy plea for funds to continue operation of the Forest Theater. Former Mayor Herbert Heron, founder of the Forest Theater, presented to the council the illustrious past of this municipal property which he termed" supremely beautiful, absolutely unique, a valuable plant in working order, and a golden crown for Carmel."

Earlier Mrs. Anita Wainwright had asked the council to continue the free Sunday afternoon programs at the Forest Theater.

Mr. Blanks urged "pragmatic" consideration of present value to the city of the historic open-air municipal theater which Mr. Heron had told the council was the oldest community theatre in the United States. Cold, hard facts showed that in the past five years no one had been able to do anything successful with the Forest Theater, Mr. Blanks stressed, and added that he was "not very sanguine" about spending tax money to keep it functioning.

Both the feasibility study for Sunset Center and requested Forest Theater expenditures will be considered again during the council's budget session on Wednesday night.

At last week's budget session Councilmen Norberg and Sefton voiced opposition to the feasibility study.

Reduce School Tax

have not been able to do some of the things that the district should do," he observed.

Few questions were asked and few people attended the hearing. It was announced that the tax rate for the coming year will be $2.44 per $100 assessed property evaluation. This is nine cents less than the $2.53 tax last year.

In other action the board approved a bid from Frontier Floors for $2,450 for carpet for the Carmelo School library.

How did the new Superintendent handle his first board meeting? Well, he was late. But it wasn't his fault. Along with thousands of other people, Dr. Taylor was a victim of the air strike.
